

FLIERS HOPE TO REACH NEW YORK BY LATE TONIGHT

Now En Route from Edmonton to Cleveland, Next to

HAVE A GOOD REST

Mrs. Gatty Travelling From Los Angeles to New York by Air

EDMONTON, Alta., July 1.—Using a paved street for a runway, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty hopped off from here today for Cleveland, Ohio, beyond which lay the home stretch of their 16,000-mile flight around the world.

They hoped to reach Roosevelt Field, New York, by night thereby completing their flight in nine days.

The monoplane Winnie Mae took the air at 3.39 a. m. (6.39 in Philadelphia) and headed southeast for the 1,600-mile flight to Cleveland, which the fliers hoped to accomplish in eleven or twelve hours.

Rain which had fallen here for the past twenty-four hours, ceased just after the take-off, but it had left Blachford Field, where the plane landed yesterday, a quagmire from which a take-off with the plane's heavy load of fuel would have been well nigh impossible.

Post ran the plane along the street for a quarter of a mile before it lifted into the air in the face of a northwest breeze. After swinging in a wide circle the plane headed southeast and straightened out on its course.

Neither the pilot nor Gatty, the nav-igator, would say before they took off just what course they would follow, but said they would bear well to the south to get away from the storm area in the vicinity of Edmonton.

There was little delay in the takeoff. The fliers refreshed by several hours' sleep arrived at the field shortly before 3 a. m. Mechanics were warming up the plane when they arrived at the hangar. Obtaining the Canadian weather reports, they climbed into the plane and took off.

Post delayed his start until police had cleared the street of spectators of whom several hundred were on hand despite the early hour.

Both expressed their gratitude for their reception here, saying they had enjoyed the best night's rest they had since they left Roosevelt Field, June 23.

"But we'll be mighty glad to get back home after this grind," Post said.

The fliers set their plane down in a neat three-point landing on the soggy turf of Blachford field at the end of a ten-hour flight from Fairbanks, Alaska.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 1.—(INS)— Mrs. Harold F. Gatty, wife of the nav-igator of the "Winnie Mae", in which her husband and Wiley Post are flying around the world, is scheduled to arrive at the Central Airport here enroute to New York to greet her husband on the completion of their circumnavigation of the globe.

Mrs. Gatty left Los Angeles by plane in order that she might arrive in New York to meet the globe circlers who are expected here tonight.

The Transcontinental and Western Airplane in which Mrs. Gatty is traveling East is expected to arrive at the Airport at 8.08 p. m., eastern daylight saving time.

LONG HOURS, WORKERS TAX, PART OF SOVIET PAY-AS-YOU-GO PLAN

(This is the concluding one of the series of two articles by Edward L. Dues, I. N. S. staff correspondent at Moscow, on the Soviet Government's new "Pay As You Go" policy for all State controlled industries.)

By Edward L. Dues
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
Article 2

MOSCOW, July 1.—Tremendous efforts have been put forth by the Soviet Government during the past few weeks to stimulate the flow of funds into the Federal treasury to offset the losses of revenue from taxation and deficits incurred in the State controlled industries, trade and transportation.

Working hours in hundreds of plants have been lengthened "by vote of the workers." There are factories working 12 hours a day, despite the fact that it is in violation of the constitution of the U. S. S. R. to work more than eight hours a day. Engineers and experts commonly work 14 to 18 hours a day. Included among these are American, German, British and other foreign engineers whose contracts called for a seven hour day.

This is but one measure the government has taken to put all Soviet industries on a "pay as you go" basis in accordance with the Supreme Economic Council's recent decree that all industries and trade organizations, directly or indirectly under control of the Federal government, must make a profit.
This decree followed swiftly upon the Council's realization that many of its industries and trade organizations were running far into the red on their operating budgets.

Additional taxes, internal loans and bond sales have been levied by the score, until millions of Soviet laborers and office employees are now paying nearly 25 per cent of their wages in taxes. In addition to these, however, the government has directed special attention to the matter of speeding up production by lengthening the working hours per day, at the same wage scale as previously ruled.

In this connection the "Moscow News," the English language weekly of the Soviet government, recently published an open letter asking the American mechanics at the Stalingrad tractor plant what they were doing to boost production. Several of the Americans wrote back saying they already were working 12 hours a day with no days off. Several others, however, used language which the "Moscow News" did not see fit to print.

There are school children 14 years old who, on promise of pleasant, profitable vacations in the open air, accepted free railroad transportation to state farms. There they were put to work eight hours a day doing chores like hauling water for 14 rubles ($7) a month and board, consisting of watery soup, black bread and raspberry-leaf tea. Their parents were obliged to send them food from Moscow because the children wrote they were hungry.

The pay-your-own-way system is administered by the State bank. How the bank is supposed to do this is known to anybody who knows about capitalistic finance.

No going enterprise is supposed to get credit from the bank on the strength of its goodwill alone. It must produce and sell goods. If credit is needed to purchase raw materials, the bank advances credit up to a certain percentage of the value of the goods to be manufactured out of the raw materials after the factory has presented an order for these goods from a purchaser.

Since all government enterprises have accounts at the bank, sales are credited to the selling organization and debited to the buyer immediately delivery is effected.

"But if sales do not cover operating expenses does a soviet institution go into bankruptcy?" a finance official was asked.

"No, of course not, but it may have to operate without paying wages," he replied. And that is what happened in a number of cases until the enterprises were reorganized under a new management and refloated with new working capital.

The new motto is "Profits and service. Both if possible, but profits above all."

PHILADELPHIAN, HURT IN CRASH HERE, SUCCUMBS

Ambrose Proca Succumbs at Harriman Hospital; Skull
Fractured

ACCIDENT AT "PINES"

One of the six people who were injured in an accident early yesterday morning at "The Pines," Radcliffe street and the highway, died last evening at five o'clock at the Harriman Hospital.

The dead:
Ambrose Proca, of 2620 East Clementine street, Philadelphia.

Proca sustained a fractured skull, fracture of the third fourth and fifth ribs; and internal chest injuries.

The man's son, Zigmund, 5, was also involved in the accident, gaining abrasions of the head, side and back.

The fatal accident occurred at about 12.30 o'clock, as Proca and his son, in company with Gus Drzewicki, 2608 E.
Clementine street, and John Andraski, 3052 Salmon street, Philadelphia, were driving toward Philadelphia. Andraski was operating a large automobile purchased the day previous by Mrs.
Ambrose Proca. The machine had been operated but 65 miles.

The crash occurred when the car carrying the Philadelphians collided with one operated by Carl Slabicki, 1901 Chestnut avenue, Trenton. Slab-icki sustained incised wounds of the head and both knees. With him at the time was Paul Scawst, 21 Ingleton street, Trenton, who is also in a serious condition at the Harriman Hospital. Scawst has a compound fracture of the skull, and incised wounds of head and legs.

All of the injured were treated at the Harriman Hospital immediately after the crash.

Proca's body was removed to his Philadelphia home.

LATEST NEWS

Philadelphia, July 1.—Two suicides were reported here today within a space of a few hours. Theodore Brinton died in the Germantown Hospital several hours after he had shot himself in the head while other members of the family were preparing for bed. Members of the family attributed the aged man's act to despondency over financial difficulties and illness.

Charles Leupold, 71, hanged himself in the cellar of his home because of worry over illness, members of the family told police. His son-in-law, Edward Belts, found him suspended from a beam when he went there to light a water heater.

MEN AT THE HELM

It seems that between the least and the greatest among men there is a gulf fixed, as though leaders were men apart from the habit and fashion of common humanity. Yet history and experience prove otherwise. When Fate contrives a crisis of calamity or necessity, men rise out of the common stock suddenly rich in strength and wisdom. Ordinary men are discovered to be capable of greatness and common men reveal their right to dignity and distinction. So often has this happened in our own national history that it is beyond the probabilities of mere accident.

How are men made for leadership? In part they are born for it, yet their heritage differs not greatly from the common stock of humanity. Partly they are created by the emergency which calls for them or by the opportunity which touches the secret springs of their powers. Partly they are built up by small things to be capable of great things. Yet none of these declares the secret of the supremacy of true leaders of men.

The stuff which gives stature to the great man comes not alone from within him. Much of it is conferred upon him by his fellows. They turn over to him their own loyalty, their labor, their strength. They put power into his hands. He becomes the symbol of other men's hopes, convictions and purposes; his strength is magnified and his spirit upheld by the gifts of those that follow him.

As best we can we put good men at the helm of our affairs. Into their hands we give power and on their shoulders we place responsibility, dignity and honor. Those that use such gifts and wisdom and humility earn title to leadership among men.

REAPPORTIONMENT TROUBLES

When Congress passed the reapportionment measure after an illegal delay of ten years the job of reapportionment representation in the lower branch of congress was not done. Complication after complication has been encountered in the actual work of redistricting the country.

The latest tangle in the maze is furnished by Minnesota where the courts have decided that the Governor has no jurisdiction in matters affecting reapportionment, and that, therefore, Governor Olsen's veto of the state legislature's redistricting bill was illegal.

This decision, which is to be appealed to the Federal courts, rests on different grounds from that which guided the New York legislature in taking the redistricting problem from the jurisdiction of the governor and having it decided by concurrent action of the Senate and the House.

The Federal constitution makes no direct provision for redistricting, so an authoritative ruling by the United States Supreme Court is essential to a final settlement of the question.

Scientists have found a prehistoric creature with joints that worked both ways. It's an old-story—pedestrianism.

We are all born free and equal, according to the Constitution, and some of us remain equal.

"MAKE-BELIEVE" by FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1930, by Faith Baldwin

Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Travers Lorrimer, shell-shocked war veteran and son of wealthy Margaret Lorrimer, mistakes pretty Mary Lou Thurston for Delight Hartford, whom he is supposed to have married in England. Mrs. Lorrimer induces Mary Lou to assume the role of Delight, of whom no trace can be found. Travers is told he must begin again with friendship. His interest in life is renewed. No mention is made of his marriage until the visit of Larry Mitchell, Mary Lou's friend. When Travers, believing Larry is in love with Mary Lou, reminds her she is his wife. At Christmas Mary Lou, irritated by Travers' lack of holiday spirit, terms him selfish. Brought to his senses, he joins his mother and Mary Lou in delivering gifts to the needy. At the Veterans' Hospital Travers meets his old buddy Jimmy McEwan, and plans to help him. Travers gives Mary Lou a sapphire ring and speaks of the seal ring he gave her. Mary Lou believes then that he really married Delight, using a seal ring. That night he kisses Mary Lou. Realizing she loves him and cannot go on pretending, Mary Lou plans to leave. Later she changes her mind. Mrs. Lorrimer remarks the change in Mary Lou to Dr. Mathews, who tells her he believes Mary Lou loves Travers. Mary Lou confides in Larry. Larry is in love with Jenny Wynne, a friend of the Lorrimeres.

CHAPTER XXIX.

MARY LOU, dressed in knickers and with a suede leather skating jacket, looked like a delightful if very effeminate boy. She pulled off her woollen tam and shrugged herself out of the jacket, appearing in a soft brown flannel skirt and gray tie. Her lovely hair shone in the firelight and her cheeks were rosy red with the cold.

"Why is it," asked Jenny, "that, when we skate or ski, Delight always looks like something on the cover of an expensive magazine? Me, I go out, armed for battle and all that, and only succeed in getting a red nose. But Delight is red where red should be, and white—or, at most, pink—other places. Of course, she hasn't as much nose as I have. What do you think, Dr. Dan?"

"Circulation," answered that gentleman briefly.

"But," said Jenny, triumphantly, "I exercise like mad."

"In spurts. The rest of the time you eat too many sweeties and too many cigarettes, wear too high heels, dance too much and spend too much time in the shops."

"And Delight, I suppose," continued the unabashed Jenny, "is just a simple child of Nature?"

Curious Reaction.

Lorrimer was antsy a great parcel of boyish which had reached Woodville House that afternoon.

"Delight," he said, looking up. She set down her cup and went over to him. "Curious how she had come to state that name; affected, one thought is, idiotic, the name of a silky, silly girl in a ridiculous novel."

"Yes, Larry?"

"I wish she wouldn't," remarked Larry to Jenny.

"Wouldn't what?"

"Wouldn't call him that. I always prick up my ears like an eel when he says that name; affected, one thought is, idiotic, the name of a silky, silly girl in a ridiculous novel."

"Well," he replied, thoughtfully, "Lawrence, dear, would be nice. But 'Lawrence dearest'—would be nicer still. However, I think 'Lawrence darling' would be almost good enough."

Jenny shook her yellow curls at him.

"Boy, you go too fast," she murmured.

Over by the big long table against the wall Lorrimer and Mary Lou were looking at the volumes in their bright jackets.

"Lots of reading matter," Lorrimer said. "We can dig ourselves in. Here are the French books you wanted, and biographies."

Mary Lou looked up at him. He was so tall she had to look up. His brown eyes were intent upon her face, intent and compelling. She felt a slow tide of color rise, flooding throat and face and brow. She looked away and opened a book which lay before her, idly, with a hand which shook, and followed a line of print with blind eyes.

Lorrimer drew a deep breath. He was no fool. He had seen. He had seen the response in her lifted eyes, the betraying color. His heart rose, light, within him.

He had been troubled lately, feeling the change in her attitude library door. None of them had seen anything, but all of them had sensed, intuitively, some sudden crisis of emotion.

Larry, of course, had to put it into words. He was not ordinarily a stupid young man, but he had been astonished into speech.

"Where's she gone?" he asked, and Jenny answered, smiling at the sudden attention aroused by her simple statement of fact:

"To dress for dinner, and it's high time we followed her example—Lawrence darling!"

There was malice in her tone. Larry jumped and glared down at her. Mrs. Lorrimer said, faintly: "Why, Jenny?"

But Jenny, who had brought a suitcase no bigger than a special delivery stamp, which meant that she was staying for dinner, was half way out of the room, in a flash of scarlet.

"She didn't mean it, you know," said Larry, embarrassed, to no one in particular. He was red as Jenny's costume, to the roots of his redder hair.

"Boy, you go too fast," she murmured.

toward him. Something warmer than indifference yet cooler than liking. But now? He wondered.

On a sudden flash of hope, if it was because she was really coming to care for him again, and he remembered her bargain with him. For he had bargained that if ever she came to care she would tell him so. And that she would, some day, he had no doubt. If she cared. For she was, he knew, essentially honest—or had become so. As he remembered her, years and leagues away, she had been a born coquette, playing with his and her own emotions. But now, he thought, he could depend on her. And he was pitiful, comprehending. Let her pride have its little brief day. Some time she would surrender it.

The Crisis.

"Dearest," he said, under his breath.

Her eyes met his for one infinitesimal instant. In them he read, briefly, an extraordinary appeal, as if he had wounded her terribly. He spoke her name, very low, urgently, and then her eyes were veiled. But he had seen the tears.

She turned away, murmuring something about changing for dinner, and left the room. The others shared after her, all but Lorrimer, who continued to look at his books, apparently unmoved by his companion's abrupt departure. Mrs. Lorrimer looked, puzzled, at Doctor Mathews, whose face were perfectly impassive. Jenny thrust her hands into her jacket pockets and whistled three bars of some current song hit. Larry stared at the

"Don't be too sure!" said Dr. Mathews.

Shortly after the new year Mrs. Lorrimer, Mary Lou and Travers Lorrimer went to Lake Placid after accompanying "Mac" to the splendid sanitarium into which Lorrimer had gained admittance for him. The doctor in charge expressed extreme optimism and was certain of a complete cure. Mac's routine was to be simple enough, consisting of food and the keen, cold mountain air and rest—principally rest. He was heartbreakingly grateful to Lorrimer.

Real Courage.

"Gee, Lieutenant," he kept saying. "Gee, I don't see why you go to all this trouble for me!"

The least he could do, he assured Mary Lou, for this "great guy" was to get well. And his dark eyes glittered in his emaciated face with an amazing resolution.

Mac had been very good medicine for Lorrimer. For once, Lorrimer was forced to disregard himself and think of someone else. Mary Lou had started him on the road to this particular cure for the sick ego, and Mac completed it for him. Unwilling to tell the little man, who admired him so greatly, of his long, relaxed surrender to nerves and retrospective horrors, he had compelled himself to play a part, that of the normal, robust, rather insensitive man who accepts everything, including war and its attendant tragedies, in his stride. And in performing this role he had been obliged to listen, on his many visits to McEwan, to interminable floods of reminiscences, some gay and ribald, some dark with remembered despair.

Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION

All ads are restricted to their proper classification and to the regular Bristol Courier style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

Errors in advertising should be reported immediately. The Bristol Courier will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

Advertising ordered for irregular insertions takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. Count five average words to the line. An average word contains six letters.

Charged ads will be received by telephone, and if paid at the Bristol Courier office within seven days from the first day of insertion, cash rates will be allowed.

Ads ordered for three or six times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared, and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Special rates for yearly advertising upon request.

Careful attention given to mail orders.

FEDERALS WIN SECOND VICTORY OF 2ND HALF

Schedule for Thursday Night
ST. ANN'S vs. A. O. H.
(St. Ann's Field)
HARRIMAN vs. EMILIE
(Emilie Field)

(By T. M. Juno)

A five run rally in the last inning enabled the Federals to win their second victory of the second half last night on St. Ann's field when they downed the Harriman Field Club by the score of 7-5.

The rally came after the Harriman team had scored five times in their half of the sixth and had taken a 5-2 lead going into the last frame. Poor fielding in the outfield caused the Sixth Warders their chance to win the game.

For five innings the fray was a hurling duel between Milton Jones and Joe Kohler with both hurlers being stingy with hits. During the first five innings' stretch, Kohler allowed four hits and two runs. Jones during the same stay gave up two safe blows and had the Harriman team blanked.

When the final tabulations were chalked up it was found that both clubs made seven hits but the Harriman club was charged with five misplays to the winners' two.

The winners scored a tally in the first. Custer walked; Foster fanned; Barrett beat out a hit to McDevitt; Fine struck out; Riola hit a Texas Leaguer to left, filling the bases; Cochrane walked, forcing in Custer with a run; Mulligan rolled to David.

Another run went to the Federals in the fifth. Jones fanned; Custer hit to Crohe who missed the fly, causing the batsman to reach third base; Foster singled to Wilkinson, scoring Custer; Foster stole second; Barrett fanned; Foster went out trying for third, Morrell to Wilkinson.

Harriman took the lead in the sixth with five runs. Dougherty tripped to right; McDevitt tripped to center, scoring Dougherty; Morrell whiffed; David beat out a hit to Fine and went to second on the shortstop's wild throw. McDevitt scoring; Wilkinson was passed; Cooper was also passed, filling the sacks; Kohler singled to left, scoring David and Wilkinson; Carp batted for Crohe and fouled to Riola; Whitaker also walked, again filling the bases; Dougherty up for the second time got his second hit, a single to Riola, scoring Cooper; McDevitt was tossed out by Riola.

The Federals won the game in their part of the seventh. Brooks batted for Heftman and was safe on McDevitt's error; Jones sacrificed, Kohler to David; Custer walked; Foster fanned; Barrett dropped a hit in left, scoring Brooks; Fine doubled to center, scoring Custer and Barrett; Riola's fly dropped at Whitaker's toes for a double, counting Fine. Cochrane was safe when Whitaker missed his fly. Riola counting; Mulligan was passed; Cochrane was caught at the plate trying to score on a double-steal, Morrell to Dougherty to Morrell.
